Who are Hoopers?

Since 1923, when Alfred Hooper founded the company bearing his name, Hoopers has sought to set the standard for the profession of probate genealogy – the tracing of missing beneficiaries. A century on, and with Hoopers representatives across five continents, we conduct our business on a truly international basis.

Our experienced team of researchers offer a collective wealth of expertise which, matched with our dedicated approach to our work, means we are able to successfully resolve hundreds of intestacies every year. We pride ourselves on maintaining friendly working relationships, whilst delivering a quality of service that is unmatched.

“It was with considerable surprise and pleasure that I read your letter. May I compliment you on your very professional presentation. I have no hesitation in signing for your commission in appreciation of your skill in tracing and detection.”

J.P. London, UK

Our office is located in Shad Thames, a historic area of London close to Tower Bridge.

Why are Hoopers getting in touch with you?

“Having worked in probate research for many years, I have been so pleased to join Hoopers as a Senior Manager. Hoopers have specialised as experts in the field of genealogy for over 100 years. As such it is a pleasure to work for such a reputable company who pride themselves as being the ethical choice of Probate Genealogists. The expertise of the staff and desire to solve the most challenging cases both in the UK and internationally speaks volumes to why Hoopers are the chosen genealogists of so many.”

Lauren Harris
Senior Manager

When someone dies without leaving a will (legally known as dying intestate), their estate should go to their closest living relations. However, sometimes no close relatives can be found. One of Hoopers' main professional objectives is to identify legitimate beneficiaries. The people we find are very often totally unaware of their relationship to the deceased.

You may have a claim

If we have been in touch, it will be because you may be entitled to a share of an unclaimed estate. We have helped many people in your situation and we know how unexpected such news can be. The very fact that we have contacted you, however, means that we have strong grounds to believe you have a legitimate claim.

Our reputation speaks for itself

Hoopers have been successfully tracing beneficiaries for 100 years during which time we have earned both the trust and the respect of the legal profession. If Hoopers are involved, it means that you are assured of complete professionalism and total confidentiality in every aspect of your case.

No inheritance, no charge

We will ask you to pay an agreed fee, but this is only if and when you receive your inheritance. We never ask for any payment in advance and, should the estate come to nothing (for instance, if a will is discovered belatedly), you will owe us absolutely nothing.

We're here to help

We have prepared a list of frequently asked questions on our website. We hope that you find this useful, but we're also very happy to answer any questions in person. Please feel free to contact us about anything you need to know regarding your case. We're here to help.
